Updated October 12, 2020SortPopularCOVID-19 RelatedHighest RatingLowest RatingThe last latest FirstI has worked with charterhouse partnership full-time in less than a year ProsBusiness and MD is very supportive of my goals and career development. MD support and transparent communication through a very difficult and difficult year have been exceptional. I feel very lucky to be working for a company that remains committed and supports its employees and continues to promote those who have earned it, regardless of market conditions. ConsIt is a sales environment, high pressure. Things aren't given to you, you have to work hard to see the results. Flag as unfitFlag as inappropriate I worked for charterhouse Partnership full-time for more than a yearProsPay flight out of /2 weeks setup/good market penetration and established relationshipsConsManagement has no idea how to run a recruitment business and has little experience in recruiting itselfFlag as inappropriate for Flag as inappropriateDI've worked with Charterhouse Partnership full-time Pros- Very supportive MD and HR, Throughout Covid-19 they were on hand day/night to support the team, provide reassurance and a very transparent collection that was appreciated! - Given the freedom to run a desk as if it were your business, it does not work for some people, but personally I much prefer it to have micro managed. If I need support for something then the whole team and management are always very accommodating and happy to offer advice. - There's been some great incentives up to grabs all my time in the business. - Very reliable brand area and experienced team. - Excellent locationCons-Parking is a problem in earlier times because there are a limited number of passes in the building so can just mean to pay and park a little further. - Recruiting in the area can be really difficult even with a strong brand reputation you need to be resilient and ready to put the job done well. Flag as inappropriateFlag as inappropriate I worked for charterhouse Partnership full-time ProsSind supported your location. They have a strong brand name in the market. The location is good. ConsExtreme Micromanagement – KPI difficult negative meetings weekly that only motivate consultants and provide zero constructive feedback – Your figures are constantly monitored and monitored. Regular 1-1 meetings and passive aggressive emails try and motivate you to very poor development – If you have more than one year of experience, you will not learn anything new in this agency – Senior consultants (and all consultants to that matter) are treated like children and end up leaving within 6-12 months (just look at many former employees' profiles on LinkedIn) Toxic Office Atmosphere – No one dares discuss anything other than work to scare the driver - the clock is always on the watch. Lunch time is 1 hour, but no one is brave enough to take it – the kind of office where people hide by the kettle to escape and cry in the toilets – the general culture is just full of lies, secrets, backstabbing, mind games and threats My advice is to do your research and take note of the negative comments on this website (they are all accurate). MD posts fake positive reviews on a regular basis. Flag as inappropriateFlag as inappropriateThan I Thank You for reviewing, feedback is important for business and for me, we are not the perfect business nor do we recognize to be. Recruitment, which has a sales career, requires dedication, endurance and drive. While selling environments can be rude to anyone who doesn't have a ride to succeed, moving to the Middle East, where there are different challenges in the market, is not for everyone. If a consultant doesn't work out, it has a financial impact (so it should), so we don't want to see everyone succeed, for them and for themselves, but the reality isn't everyone has what it takes to succeed like any sales roll. Although we are not a business with strict performance key indicators, we are a company that as well as any business, so we ensure that the activity is at the level necessary to be successful. Charterhouse Middle East does not actively participate in the Glassdoor website, we do not encourage our employees, managers, etc. to write positive reviews nor we post vacancies in Glassdoor, vacancies that are posted by Glassdoor related to Charterhouse in the Middle East are made redundant. I agree that individuals should review LinkedIn and other sources before joining the business, to ensure you do your research, but keep in mind that websites with anonymous comments are rarely thoroughly verified and if you look at competitors on the same website you will see almost the same negative comments. Since Charterhouse is not the right fit for you then hopefully you have secured a new role that will allow you to achieve the success you need I have worked with the Charterhouse Partnership for over a year with ProsSupport management, autonomy (support but not micromanagement) and the most established business in the UAE when it comes to long-term customer relationshipsConsHard to think about any, but I can perhaps say management needs to be a little bit more difficult – the environment is successful and relaxed, but sometimes people can take advantage? Flag as Inappropriate Flag as Inappropriate I have worked in the Charterhouse Partnership full-time for more than a yearProsOTE, camaradie, best boss in the world! ConsNone I love working with this businessFlag as unfit I've worked with Charterhouse Partnership full-time ProsS Turned on HR, good customers, office location and a good team. A good place to develop. ConsClients move slowly, tough on the market. Loads of candidates available, which makes it difficult to managed responses fromFlag as inappropriateflag as the inappropriate I worked for the In Charterhouse Partnership full-time for more than a yearProsThey hire some very good consultants directly in the UK so brings you out and give you a hotel for a few weeks. You're going to meet friends fast. ConsActually read the reviews here – the agency, which has about 20 consultants who have reviews running hundreds of Glassdoor. It tells you two things, they have a high turn around and they write comments themselves. Look at the language of all the positive comments, they all read the same company responds to all the negative comments. If you're reading this then you're a recruiter - use your LinkedIn skills and search for former employees of Charterhouse. You can find these agencies and house teams from all over the UAE. Send them a message and ask them directly, you will hear the same story from all of them. Flag as InappropriateFlag as inappropriate I have worked for the Charterhouse Partnership full-time in less than a yearProsCulture is very focused on delivery and the first interview is to say how difficult the market is and that you will be pushed. Push is definitely there from day one, but the push is to make you a better consultant, you will learn visas, customer detention, etc. Senior Management has all the billers and business allows people to trust to run their own desks business, which is good if you are enterprising. Incentives and other consultants are good. ConsThe market is incredibly tough and recruitment is an industry with unique challenges, at the end of the day you sell something that is intangible and sometimes things are completely out of control. You need to make sure you're strapped for what can sometimes be a roller coaster ride and be ready for a very unstable market. Flag as unfitFlag as inappropriate I have worked for the Charterhouse Partnership full-time for more than a year at The ProsA's large office site and central location. A labour culture that seeks best to support, motivate and reward efforts despite the ongoing challenge facing the market. A brand that can open doors and with whom candidates want to work. A company that now spans search and selection, labor solutions and outsourcing and RPO service with solid core experienced recruiters with a legitimate interest in delivering. ConsSa may rely on a rerun or legacy business. As an SME, the pressure can be great, but people generally recognise an open culture and the need to contribute to bills. Consultants who are not motivated or able do not last as long as the spotlight is on them. The action can be random at times, but overlooked when the results are coming. The objectives do not always reflect the conditions of the markets, because not everyone can offer a large number all the time. Mark invalid Flags Flag as invalid
